On 31 May 2018, in a fishing village in Jakarta, Indonesia, a man carrying wood steps over mounds of plastic garbage. The country is the second biggest marine polluter in the world, behind China, producing over 187 million metric tons of plastic waste annually. The problem in Indonesia has become so extreme that the country's army is called in to assist with clean-up efforts when rivers and canals become clogged with plastic trash.

© Getty Images
This image may be used for personal, non-commercial purposes only.

Source Citation  (MLA 8th Edition)

Gale Document Number: GALE|RVFSPW352469201